Northeast Tennessee Career Center featured as one of the top One-Stop facilities in the Southeast

NASHVILLE – Lights, camera, action . . . Washington County's Northeast Tennessee Career Center at 2515 Wesley Street in Johnson City is in the spotlight of attention May 15-16 when a camera crew from South Carolina comes to produce a feature story on the center and how they are tackling the problems of high unemployment by attracting new business and training skilled workers to meet those needs.

The story will show how the Washington County region differs from others across the Southeast and will feature the services provided at the Northeast Tennessee Career Center, focusing on how the One-Stop concept fits into the economic development picture for the region, plus, the importance of private sector involvement to the program. The story will also highlight the retraining of workers that helped bring Bush Hog Manufacturing to the region.

News media are invited to stop by during the production. Interviews with a success story and a Bush Hog representative will take place between 8:00 and 9:00 A.M. on Wednesday, May 15.
